Like the dreaded "Tell me about yourself," the question, "Why are you interested in this position?" is sure to come up in any job interview you do. Why not nail the .

What do you want? or What are you looking for? Those sound like legitimate questions and they are. However, the reality is that a potential employer isn't.

First, they are trying to see if you do, in fact, have a goal for the future. Secondly, they want to see if your ultimate goal is in line with the field in which you are. I grew up not having much. Not a lot of money. Not a lot of potential in life. Not a lot of opportunities. Not a lot of interpersonal interaction. You name it. Growing. What do you want to do in life? If you're feeling a bit lost and feel stuck where you are, these 7 questions are powerful enough to help you figure. I finally figured out how to answer when people ask what you want to be. If you can figure out the sort of lifestyle you'd like then you can start.

Tips on deciding what you want to be when you grow up, how to explore different career options, choosing a dream career, and when to make.
